

Long-term Montanans and new residents agree state government should be more active in attracting businesses that will create higher-paying jobs.

